HONGKONG, JULY 29TH, 1912. JAPAN is the "England of the East" in more respects than one, and it is interesting to note that the leading Japanese paper, the Jiji Shimbun, in commenting upon the recent speeches in the British House of Commons on the necessity for a steady and constant increase in the naval strength of the Empire, emphasises that it is of vital importance to Japan that she should not drop behind in the race. The fact must not be lost sight of, says our contemporary, that Japan's population, which is now increasing at the rate of 500,000 a year, must of necessity depend upon foreign rice to make up for the yearly deficiency in her own supply. This necessity is intensified, it says, by the gradual metamorphosis of the Japanese from an agricultural to an industrial people, which makes the safe transport of their food a question of vital importance to their national existence. Yet when we turn to the official statistics relating to the culti- in College Chambers on the occasion of vation and yield of rice in Japan we find that the 91st Anniversary of the Peruvian both show a steady increase, rather than a decrease, during the past ten years, both in the area under cultivation and in the total production. The statistics published by the Japanese Government show that there are now in Japan a total of 13,523 "factories," in which category the mines and shipyards are included, and the total number of operatives in all these is given have been asked to agree to an alteration as 717,161, of whom more than three-fifths. in the form.

are females. Therefore, if the population of Japan is increasing at the rate of 500,000 a year, and the whole of the industrial enterprises of Japan do not offer employment for more than three-quarters of a million, there is no great danger of the agricultural industry suffering from the metamorphosis referred to. The danger arises, more from had harvests than from scarcity of agricultural labour, though the statistics evidence the fact that whether the harvests be good or bad, Japan relies to a certain extent for supplies from the foreign rice markets.

Economic Annual for 1912 shows the value of the rice import into Japan for fourteen years, and it is interesting to note the fluctuations. In 1898 the value of the rice imported is set down as yen 48,319,810, but in the following year it was less than six millions. From 1899 to 1902 the import kept below twenty million yen in value, but in 1903 it rose to close on 52 millions; in 1904 it reached nearly 60 millions, and in 1905 it stood at 48 millions. This phenomenal import was due, of course, to the war with Russia, which drew thousands of men from the fields to fight the country's A BLEND OF THE FINEST PURE battles in Manchuria. After the conclusion of the war the import of rice into Japan steadily declined, in 1910 it did not amount in value to more than yen 8,644,439 and last year, in consequence of a poor harvest, the import rose to twice that value. But whatever the case may be for a big fleet to ensure Japan against a stoppage of food supplies, it is of equal importance to her that her entire seaborne trade should be adequately protected. This trade is constantly growing in volume. Her exports last year were valued at Yen 447,187,888, and her import trade at Yen 510,218,959. Nearly one-half of this seaborne trade was carried in Japanese steamships. In addition to protecting her own coasts, the obligations of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance have to be considered, and in view of the naval shipbuilding which is going on it Europe the Jiji points out that Japan must augment her naval power if the value of the alliance is to be preserved. A survey of the Japanese fleet, our contemporary says reveals that not only many of her armoured ships, forming the main strength of her navy, are almost obsolete, but their designs are lacking in uniformity, which fact renders their strategic value as a fleet extremely small. 'When the armoured ships now building are completed, Japan will find herself in possession of a line of ships of newest pattern and of uniform speed and armament; but their number does not yet reach the minimum necessary. Unless, therefore, Japan establishes a definite plan of naval expansion and sets to work in dead earnest, not only will it be impossible for her to effect any increase of her power, but she will have to face a yearly retrogression. "This means that Japan is moving against the world's current in the matter of naval expansion and sapping the very foundation of her existence as a modern Power, to say nothing of the inevitable diminution in the efficiency of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance." Whether these opinions are "inspired" and forcshadow a new shipbuilding programme for Japan remains to be seen, but we think of the recent decision of the Russian Gov-

On Saturday at the Magistracy Mr. Brutton applied for a remand in the case of two Chinese who were charged at the instance of Detective Sergeant Grant with being in unlawful possession of arms and ammunition in a house in Des Vœux Road. The remand was granted, bail being fixed at $250 in each case.

An outbreak of fire occurred at the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, Tientsin, ed by 221 votes to 156. on the morning of the 16th instant. Through the carelessness, it is said, of a Chinese workman, an electric wire, which he was at the moment repairing, fused and set light to a mat-shade on the North portico of the Bank. The man took fright on seeing what had happened and bolted. The fire lasted only a few minutes, being quickly extinguished with Bank's premises, to which the staff, foreign and Chinese, of the Bank applied themselves with prompitude and zeal. What damage was done was almost entirely due to water.

In connection with the theft at the Grand Hotel, Yokohama, as a result of which Mr. Roy Smith, the manager of the Bandmann Opera Company, was relieved of a sum of 260 yen and a silver cigarette case, the police have arrested a young man named Takagi, aged 17, employed at the hotel, as a suspect. The Japan Herald states that Takagi is still under detention at the station, and is being submitted to a rigorous examination. Although he is maintaining an obstinate attitude and refuses to answer questions, the police are convinced the man is connected with the affair, and investigations have proved that he has a bad record.

On June 15th the new steamer Laomedon, built at Belfast for Messrs. Alfred Holt & Co., Liverpool, left Belfast Harbour for machinery trials and speed tests. These all passed off successfully, and the vessel left for Birkenhead to complete loading for her initial voyage to the Far East on 28th inst. The new vessel is 457ft, in length, with a gross tonnage of 6.692, and has been constructed on the owners' girder system, which, in addition to ensuring increased strength, provides unobstructed cargo space in the holds and allows of the stowage of the largest class of goods. The propelling machinery consists of a set of triple-expansion engines with the latest improvements, steam being supplied by two double-ended steel multitubular boilers, working under forced draught.

Writing on "A Quarter of a Century in Manchuria" in the July Bible in the World, Mr. R. T. Turley, F.R.G.S., says that when he went to Manchuria in 1886 there were only about half a dozen Protestant missionaries in the country. They had centres only in the port of Newchwang and the city of Mukden, with a few small out-stations, and there were altogether only 300 or 400 Christians. Nine-tenths of Manchuria was practically unknown land. Now there are well-organised mission stations, with splendid hospitals, in almost every Manchurian city, besides about 500 regular out-stations and numerout meeting-houses. There are over-20,000 Church members, and large numbers of adherents, with over 20 native pastors and 500 evangelists, trained teachers, and Biblewomen. During the last 25 years the Bible Society has sold in Manchuria more than 1,650,000 copies of the Scrip-

STEAM TRAWLING IN CHINA.

A Shanghai correspondent informs us that the trawler Hoi Fung, belonging to Hongkong and South China Steam Fisheries Co., Ltd., is laid up there on account of opposition by the Republican Government to foreigners engaging in the fishing industry. The question is considered to be one affecting the Chinese Government's fishing rights in her sovereignty as an independent power.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

Though we are by no means out of the wood yet, it is matter for congratulation that there have been so few typhoon alarms this year. So far the signals have only been hoisted twice, and on both occasions we have been fortunate enough to get nothing more than the merest fringe of the storm. It is many years since we have been so free from alarms of this kind, a feature which will doubtless make the summer memorable. I remember last year making a comment about the immunity from typhoons usually experienced in August, and was taken to task by a correspondent who quoted figures which seemed to disprove my statement. However, the fact remained that there were no typhoons in that month, and the comment, which was based on the remark of a former meterological exhope that August will keep up its re- absence of any other it may be accepted. putation this year.

During the week there has been some discussion among shipping men as to the utility of hoisting the red signals, it being contended that by creating unnecessary alarm among the floating population they put a stop to all work on the harbour. Without possessing any special knowledge on the subject, it seems to me that the objection is hardly applicable. I have noticed several times sampans and these signals were hoisted, a fact which seasonable sport, would have no recreaindicates that the Chinese floating popu- tion to while away the hours of a sultry lation do not rely entirely on the signals | night. A report reaches me-the authenticity of which I doubt-that considerable indignation was expressed in some quarters on Saturday when it was learnt that the Superintendent of Police had neglected to issue special traffic regulations for the neighbourhood of College Chambers on Sunday in view of the invitation given to the whole Peruvian community to call at the Consulate for the purpose of celebrating the 91st Anniversary of the Republic. Fortunately, adds my correspondent, this indignation did not come to a head, as thanks Presumably to the Peruvian community having been given the tip "to come earle and avoid the crush" there was not the slightest interruption of traffic in the neighbourhood to justify a murmur of complaint.

The other week I read with interest a leading article in the Daily Press on the subject of "pidgin English" and a plea for the use of pure English. In the course of the article the origin of several words used in pidgin English were traced, words which are likely to survive pidgin English itself, such as godown, coolie, chit, and so on, but no reference was made to the word cumshaw. I made inquiries from several sources, and the most feasible explanation advanced is that the word is the Chinese rendering of the phrase "come ashore" used by the early sailors here. When the sampan people lying alongside the ships heard the men advise one another to "come ashore" and learned by experience that this was rewarded by fairly liberal remuneration they associated gift with for the defence, 'come ashore," a phrase which they expressed as cumshaw. The second aquatic carnival of the season, which was brought off at the Victoria Recreation Club on Saturday night, go into Chambers? proved a great success, and prospects made it plainly manifest that an increasing interest is being taken in all forms of swimming sports, and such interest is scarcely likely to decline while the committee provide such good programmes, and carry them through as smoothly as was the case on Saturday night. There were opportunities for budding champions to try their mettle; the ladies (of whom there was a large attendance) had an interest in the sport; and there was lots of fun provided by the large number of competitors who essayed to walk the tight rope. The night was warm, but a light breeze made it pleasant for the spectators, most of whom no doubt enjoyed the excellent programme of music provided by the band of the K.O.Y.L.I. SUPREME COURT. ----Saturday, 27th July.

In Summary Jurisdiction. BEFORE MR. H. H. J. GOMPERIZ (Puisne Judge).

THE CLAIM BY A NURSE. The hearing of the action at the instance of Miss Emma S. Hamilton against Mr. H. W. Looker for $1,000, damages for wrongful dismissal, was continued before his Lordship and a special jury consisting of Messrs. F. Maitland. A. R. Lowe, and L. Berindoague. Mr Reader Harris, of Messrs. Wilkinson & Grist, appeared for plaintiff, Mr. Looker appearing in person.

On Mr. Looker rising to open the case

Mr. Maitland, the foreman of the jury, said:-My Lord,-Before the defence starts, the jury would like to know if there is any chance of a compromise between the parties?

His Lordship-I have suggested that myself. I have taken a great deal of trouble in the matter.

Mr. Looker-My Lord, I am quite willing and desirous of stating what I stated to your Lordship when you mentioned it, if you think I should properly do so. His Lordship-Would it be any use to Mr. Harris-Not the slightest, my look bright for the promoters as well as Lord, if my friend still persists in the junks scurrying to shelter before ever for the sporting public who, but for this attitude he has taken up before your Lordship.

Mr. Looker-What is that?

Mr. Harris-The attitude you took up was that you would not make any offer in settlement, but that if my client was prepared to accept a ticket to London Mr. Looker has been putting many things and prepared to admit, or withdraw at any rate, any suggestion that she had no grounds for being dismissed-practically to say that you were quite right in dismissing her—then you were prepared Tuesday. to settle it.

His Lordship-1 do not think it was quite that. I think I suggested a ticket for London and a modification of the testimonial.

Mr. Looker-That, my Lord, is substantially what I said.

Mr. Harris-My friend's point was that if the case was settled people would believe that my client was justified in bringing the action and it was that point my friend wished withdrawn. I still con sider that my client was justified in bringing the action, and so does she, and therefore no settlement can be arrived at on those lines. If my friend is prepared to pettle it for a reasonable amount and costs, we are quite willing.

His Lordship-What is the price of ticket to London?

Mr. Harris-About £50. His Lordship-Of course, the costs would not be very great. Mr. Harris-The costs would be rather great, as the case has gone on a long time.

Mr. Looker-What I stated in Cham-Muskett, and after a splendid finish the bers to your Lordship was that I did not see how, at that stage of the action, when WALKING THE TIGHT ROPE, two tries: | the plaintiff's evidence had been given F. K. Tata; 2, G. C. Jorge. There and was uncontradicted by any evidence opportunity of putting my witnesses in; but that if your Lordship thought it was proper that any offer of settlement should be made, I would seriously consider it. I ask your Lordship if that is not what L said. Mr. Harris-It is not for me to make an offer of settlement. It is for my friend, who is the defendant.

I am quite prepared to provide plaintiff with a ticket Home, and l am quite prepared, in addition, if she prefers not to go Home, to give her the equivalent of her passage in money.

Mr. Harris-That is quite new. His Lordship-It would be better not to go on with this in Court. We had plaintiff, is not prepared to make any offer. It is for my friend to make the offer.

Mr. Looker-I am quite prepared to state now, whatever views I may take on the question of a settlement at this stage. that I am quite prepared to offer to give plaintiff a ticket Home, or to give her the equivalent in money, and to add anything in her testimonial which I think I truth- 3 fully and properly can.

His Lordship-To put in a new form of words? Mr. Looker-Yes; anything I truthfully and properly can.

His Lordship-In lieu of what is there at present?

Mr. Looker Yes, I feel, with regard 10. to adding anything to the testimonial book, that it would be improper for me to add anything which I do not truly 14. and conscientiously believe. Therefore, I am unwilling to put anything in unless it is what I do properly and conscienti- 16. ously believe. As regards what has been. put in, I am quite willing that plaintiff should take it out if she likes.

His Lordship-It seems to me that it was really put in by you unwillingly and under a misapprehension.

Mr. Looker-I quite agree. His Lordship-Therefore, there is no reflection on either side. Mr. Looker-It was put in by me unwillingly. Mr. Harris-There is no evidence of tives in the prize-list, Pitt and Stuart,

Mr. Harris-Yes, but we are talking before a jury, and every word of that has been negatived by Mrs. Barlow. She has said that nothing of the sort occurred. to witnesses and has been giving evidence from the table throughout the whole case.

Mr. Harris- You are addressing me. my Lord, as though I wanted the case to go on. I do not at all.

His Lordship-No. I should merely come back and say to the jury that nothing has been done, and the jury would understand that I had taken a very strong step at this stage of the proceedings.

Mr. Looker-Assuming that one side or the other makes an offer of settlement which is not accepted?

His Lordship-The jury will not know who has made the offer or what offer has been made.

Judgment will be entered for the plaintiff for $750 and no costs on either side.

Parties then left the Court.

FIGHTING IN TONGKOON.

Scrious fighting is reported from the Tongkoon district. It began with a conflict between the clans Ng and Yip, and when it was learned in Canton that a military officer and a number of soldiers were committing robberies troops were despatched to suppress them. The robbers defeated them but on the arrival of reinforcements from Canton the robbers were dispersed, over 30 houses being burned.

This however, did not free the district from bad characters. Over 1000 are still at large and as they take refuge in the mountains it is difficult for the troops to operate against them. Crimes of every description are said to be committed by these robbers.

On Saturday night, a bomb exploded and partially wrecked a house in the Foochow Road district, Shanghai. Although serious enough in itself, the explosion seems, fortunately, unconnected with any of the political questions of the
